TAYLOR CALLS FOR ACTION IN SCHOOL CRISIS

Suggests Special Session in Letter To Gov-
nor Davey

DECLARES IT IS ASSEMBLY'S DUTY

Thinks Office Holders
Should Do Something
To Earn Salary

A suggestion that Gov. Martin L. Davey call a special session of the Ohio legislature to deal with the problem of providing operating funds for many schools was offered the governor today by State Senator John Taylor of Salem.

In a letter to the governor, in which he speaks as "one defeated candidate for re-nomination to another," Senator Taylor declares he believes it is the obligation of the present legislature to provide funds so schools may operate until the next general assembly convenes in January.

Safe For Democracy
Senator Taylor also gives his reason for the outcome of last Tuesday's election with the statement: "The election the other day proves to me that America is safe for democracy and that no politician or political party can get so important that the people can not do without them."

The senator's letter to the governor follows:
"As one defeated candidate for re-nomination to another, I think we owe the State of Ohio the obligation of providing funds so that the schools may continue to function until the next general assembly convenes in January."

"This is the least we can do in return for the salary we are receiving for the balance of our terms."

"Political Indigestion"
In your speech at the chamber of commerce meeting you said that the people were having "legislative indigestion." I thoroughly agree with you, but I would like to add that they also have "political indigestion" because of the overdose of political machines and bossism so generously given them the past few years.

The election the other day proves to me incidentally that America is safe for democracy, and that no politician or political party can get so important that the people cannot do without them.

"What the people really did at the polls the other day was to let all politicians and political parties know that the people are still running this state, and that they do not approve the use of money for the personal aggrandizement of politicians or parties."

"Therefore, I respectfully suggest that you call a special session for the purpose of dealing with the school problem, a problem the people I'm sure want to have solved."

URGES GOVERNOR TO AID SCHOOLS

Teachers' Group Advises
Special Session of Legislature

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, Nov. 12.—Michael J. Eck, executive secretary of the Ohio State Federation of Teachers, urged Gov. Martin L. Davey today to summon the legislature into special session to make available operating funds for public schools.

"I sincerely trust that you will act at once to avoid the tragedy of closed schools and payless pay days for all employees," said Eck in a letter to the governor.

Eck said similar appeals for action pending the regular January legislative session had been sent to state senators and representatives.

Governor Davey withheld comment on the request.

Eck said a program suggested in the letter had not been acted on formally by the federation, an AFL affiliate, but that it was a plan that could "be enacted into law in one legislative day."

The proposals would enable boards of education to borrow funds in anticipation of 1939 revenue and empower the state director of education to issue notes due Nov. 30 for the quarterly payment from the school foundation fund.

Eck appealed to the governor "in the light of your promise to call a special session to aid Ohio's public schools."

"The time has come," said the letter, "when the schools of Ohio must ask you to fulfill that obligation for the sake of the hundreds of thousands of children who look to you and to the legislature for leadership."

Eck alluded to the closing of schools at Dayton and recent school crisis at Parma, Cleveland suburb.

"These situations constitute only a mild forecast of what is to come if the legislature does not devise at least a temporary remedy," Eck continued.

After Holdup at North

Salem state highway patrolmen and Mahoning county deputies failed late yesterday to find trace of two bandits who fled after robbing the East Fairfield Coal Co.'s office, near North Lima, of currency estimated between $300 and $400.

On the basis of the first totals Edgar Durre of Evansville, a candidate for judge of the appellate court, was the only Republican elected on the state ticket although Dan Flanagan of Fort Wayne, also a judicial candidate, claimed to have won.

The same correction in the vote slashed the lead of Sen. Frederick Angola, his Republican opponent, to 5,992 votes. The unofficial total previously had shown Van Nuy's winner by 6,535 votes.

Nation's Economic Life Is Brighter; Business Improves

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—For some weeks the indices of the nation's economic life have been pointing upward. Improvement has been noticeable at almost every hand.

Steel production, for example, has been above a year ago for several weeks. For the current week, operations in the nation's mills advanced 42 points to 61 per cent of capacity production, the highest since Oct. 11 last year. Automobile output, cotton mill activity and residential building likewise continued to show gains. As a result, The Associated Press index of industrial activity, based on the years 1929-1930 as 100, improved 24 points to 86.0, the highest since a year ago.

Against this background, into the midst of the brighter outlook, there was injected the election returns. And apparently, the extent of the Republican victories, at the expense of New Deal Democrats and Progressives, exceeded even Wall Street's hopes.

Wednesday found "The Street" in an exuberant state of mind. The stock exchange had its biggest day in a year and more.

Blocks of 5,000 to 8,000 shares changed hands throughout the day and the rally carried share prices to the highest levels of the 1938 recovery movement that began in July.

Bond prices showed similar improvement.

Previous totals had shown Koenemann the winner by 102 votes. The revised figures gave Tucker 77,420 votes and Koenemann 77,250.

On the basis of the first totals Edgar Durre of Evansville, a candidate for judge of the appellate court, was the only Republican elected on the state ticket although Dan Flanagan of Fort Wayne, also a judicial candidate, claimed to have won.

NEW DEAL PLAN TO BE PUSHED, IS F. D. R. HINT

Chamber of Commerce
Points To "Warning"
By Voters

CONGRESS GIVEN "GO SLOW" SIGNAL

Business Pickup Seen As Aftermath of Tuesday Ballot

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—President Roosevelt's expressed views on the outcome of the congressional election led many politicians to conclude today that he would push the fundamentals of his New Deal program as vigorously as ever in the new congress.

More of this opinion said the President's remarks at his press conference yesterday indicated he believed he could do so without serious political repercussions, despite the fact that the Democratic party lost heavily in Tuesday's voting. They pointed to these statements:

First, the President said he did not expect Democrats critical of his administration to combine with Republicans to block legislative proposals.

Said He Expected It
Second, he said he had expected the Republicans to capture many Democratic seats. He had predicted, he said, that they would win seven senate seats and 65 house seats; as it turned out they won eight seats in the senate and at least 81 in the house.

Third, he said he thought the results did not constitute a threat to liberal government.

This latter expression, some politicians said, suggested that Mr. Roosevelt believed there had been no sweeping change in popular support for the policies of his administration.

A contrary view was expressed by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. In a statement, it interpreted the election results as giving a "go slow signal" to congress, and said this should be "reassuring to business." The chamber predicted a pick-up in business activity this month.

Some Democratic legislators said they thought the reduced Democratic majority would be inclined to unite behind the President's program and that there would be fewer intraparty quarrels than in the last congress.

House Majority Leader Rayburn of Texas said, "I think these Democrats we have in there this time are going to be Democrats and go along with the program."

Drafting Program
The problem of drafting that program already is occupying Mr. Roosevelt.

The program is almost certain to include several proposals dealing with subjects which have provoked controversies. Among these are extension of the Social Security Act, clarification of some points of the wage-hour law, continuation of heavy relief expenditures, tax legislation, extension of federal regulation over business, along lines laid out by the monopoly committee and possibly revision of the Wagner Labor Relations Act.

In its discussion of the new congress' problems, the chamber of commerce put near the top the question of whether to continue an "extravagant" relief policy.

"DICTATORSHIP HERE"—MOSELEY

No Need to "Worry About Its Coming" Says Retired Officer

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI, Nov. 12.—Maj. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, retired commander of the third army corps area, returned to Atlanta, Ga., today, leaving a message that "we do not need to worry about the coming of a dictatorship—it is here."

"But," he added in an address before the National Christian convention, "I hope, not long to stay."

General Moseley, who, on his retirement Sept. 30 was reprimanded by the war department for a statement criticizing the administration, termed the current politico-economic situation "the greatest national emergency that has confronted us since the birth of the nation."

Calling upon the people to put forth "the cream of the parties" in 1940 for a coalition government, the officer declared:

"Dictatorships have come as a result of a coup d'etat or a revolution on the part of a vigorous minority or when a leader rides into power by taking advantage of a national emergency. But never has there been a dictatorship by a man actually bought by government dollars. Many states whose political leaders proclaim loudest about state rights have traded those rights away for government subsidy. Thus, we do not need to worry about the coming of a dictatorship—it is here."

Opportunity For Church

General Moseley told the convention that the opportunity for church work now presented was the "greatest of our time. We are still a Christian nation," he said.

"In chiseling the American dollar," he said, "the words 'In God we trust' have not yet been removed."

Duke and Duchess Of Windsor May Go Home To England

PARIS, Nov. 12.—The possibility that the Duke and Duchess of Windsor might establish a home in England soon after Jan. 1 was forecast by the couple's friends today as the ultimate result of their friendly meeting with the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester.

As the royal brothers' reconciliation talks came to an end, it was said the former King Edward VIII and his second younger brother had discussed Windsor's permanent return to England with his American-born duchess. The date was expected to depend on public reaction to their projected Christmas day visit with the royal family in London.

The plan, said by friends to have been proposed by the British prime minister, Neville Chamberlain, would, however, bind Windsor to exclude the duchess, the former Wallis Warfield, from his official duties as member of the royal family.

They would remain away from London during the social season, it was reported, lest the duchess' participation in various functions raise knotty questions of precedence and rank.

Dewey Asks Rebuke For
"Dictatorship Gone Mad"

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—Jews were assessed today 1,000,000 marks — $400,000,000 — as a penalty for the murder of Ernst von Rath, German diplomat in Paris, it was announced officially.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The new outbreak of anti-Semitism in Germany brought strong protests today from former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey — and anonymous threats of bombing to German consulates here and at Boston.

Dewey and Smith appeared together on a radio broadcast last night sponsored by the non-sectarian Anti-Nazi league.

Declaring he wanted to "appeal to world opinion to rebuke a dictatorship gone mad," Dewey said: "We stand appalled by the sight of what has happened in Nazi Germany."

Sees Organized Plot

Dewey criticized the violence as "an organized plot to crush the Jewish people," and added, "no amount of lame explanation by the German minister of propaganda can make the picture any different."

Smith said the German people had proved themselves incapable of living under a democratic form of government.

"Hitler's challenge is not alone to the Jewish people but to the Catholics, the Protestants and everyone else and it strikes at the very foundation on which we have erected America."

Folke placed a 24-hour guard over the home of German Consul General Hans Brochert after he reported anonymous telephone threats that the consulate office would be blown up.

A spokesman for the consulate said, however, such threats had been frequent in recent months and there was "nothing to be alarmed over."

A guard also was placed over the German consulate in Boston. Acting Consul Kurt Bohme said he had received two warnings by telephone that the building would be blown up today. Bohme said he was "not afraid" and the consulate would be "open as usual."

N. York Consulate Picketed
The Boston consulate has been the scene of several anti-Nazi demonstrations recently. The New York consulate was picketed yesterday by a delegation from the American League for Peace and Democracy.

Carrie Chapman Catt, veteran Pacificist and feminist leader, and the National Council of Women sent telegrams to the state department asking the government to protest the persecution of Jews in Germany and Palestine.

Louis Bromfield, Pulitzer prize winning novelist, suggested that the peninsula of Lower California (Mexican territory) be turned into a haven for refugee Jews. Captain Victor A. Cazalet, member of the British parliament, proposed that a million Jews seek refuge in northern Rhodesia, Africa.

MANDATE

That word mandate—what does it mean now? The definition in the dictionary hasn't changed ("the will of a constituency expressed to its elected representatives") but what's this LaGuardia, LaFollette and so on are squaring away to do?

They're going to hold a meeting to discuss ways and means of saving their progressive and respective skins. Unlike William Allen White, who speaks from the benefit of experience as a liberal who once had experience with Teddy Roosevelt, they're all pepped up about the idea of a third party.

Now to come back to that word mandate. In 1936 when the peepul spoke, progressives solemnly decided it was a mandate to go the limit. But in 1938 when the peepul want the progressives to pull in their horns the first idea that pops into their minds is that the peepul have made a grave mistake and must be saved from the consequences.

Oh well.

THE DICTATOR'S DEAD—

Death must come to all men, as it has come to Kamal Ataturk, modern Turkey's strong man. When it comes to dictatorial rules, the question always will be the same—What now?

It is not known what plans, if any, President Ataturk made for succession to his position as creator and leader of post-war Turkey. He must have given the matter much thought.

Circumstances and his own driving ambition made it possible for Ataturk to play a dictatorial role in his country's government. He was one of his generation's strong men, classed with leaders like Stalin, Mussolini and Hitler.

At the instant of his death it should be as evident to them as it probably was to him that here is one great fault in personal rule which none of them can repair. It cannot provide stability for the time when the ruler dies. It is predicated on the false premise that a mortal man can achieve immortality.

President Ataturk is first of the European post-war personal rulers to die. He was a successful dictator in the sense that he accomplished much. Whether the kind of government he established can be successful is a question unanswered.

ON THE DEFENSIVE

It's no insult to the sagacity of political experts to say they got bumped on the nose by election returns. Even he ones who guessed with their heads, instead of their hearts, were taken over the jumps by the unforeseen weakness of so many candidates identified with the new deal.

Wednesday, the guesses started to circulate. With cross-currents omitted for the sake of getting at the meaning of the Democratic reversal, the guesses could be classified as follows:

That the administration's policies have failed to muster sufficient favor to enable it to claim continuation of the political dominance it enjoyed and freely exercised from 1933 to 1937, when it first encountered determined opposition on the issue of judicial and executive reorganization. Tuesday's losses probably reflect that popular opinion backed up congressional opposition to the new deal program.

That as a result of this decline in prestige, President Roosevelt's popularity now may be similarly affected. This may be a mixture of guessing and wishful thinking on the part of those who speculate about it. The question is: how good a voter is Mr. Roosevelt now?

Administration strategists will try now to catalog the reasons for the lack of support their program has encountered, apparently to their complete surprise. They would not be far wrong if they concluded that inability to capitalize on good intentions is their weakness. They have managed to alienate the sympathy of what they speak of as the upper third of the population by placing it on the defensive. To offset its support they have won the favor of the lower third by continuous expressions of sympathy. Where they have fallen down is the middle third.

The United States is a middle class country, a fact which annoys those who are in a hurry to move along with the class war. It is in the middle class that political issues are fought and decided in the last analysis.

There now have appeared unmistakable signs that this group is beginning to doubt the effectuality of the new deal. The administration promised too much, claimed too much and effected too little that was sound.

This has come about, to a large extent, because the Roosevelt administration's program of reform was imposed before acceptance had been created. The lower third took it on faith. The middle third accepted it on trial. Failure to satisfy seems to explain the trend away from administration candidates last Tuesday.

It is easy to believe that had the good part of the program been developed from the ground up, instead of injected from the top down, it would have been devised so carefully and administered so intelligently that criticism would have been avoided. But the Roosevelt administration has been characterized by nothing if not by haste.

An attempt to accomplish quickly what could be accomplished better by deliberation has back-fired. It is not too much to hope that now there may be a restoration of the policy of looking before leaping in government affairs. With such a policy in effect the country's future progress would be assured.

If you don't fully understand the mysteries of finance, don't give it another thought. A five-time president of the stock exchange had only a hazy idea himself.

For Monday, November 14

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST is a rather conflicting one. There are signs of advancement, recognition and splendid openings for the fruition of great hopes and wishes. At the same time, there are symbols of disturbance, distress, setbacks and postponements of such ambitions. This may be due to an unexpected and unwelcome change, or to the intervention of an elder who is kindly disposed but who upsets cherished objectives.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of conflicting interests. There is promise of fulfilled goals and wishes within happy grasp, but there may be happenings to delay, disappoint or smother such ideas, possibly a mishap to an old person, who has friendly intentions but who is an upsetting factor.

A child born on this day may be highminded, aspiring, efficient and deep, steadfast and enterprising, winning the support of the public spirited. At the same time, it may have rather fluctuating fortunes.

Think of Uncle Sam's worries as a landlord called on to spend $100,000 a day painting, paper hanging, and fixing plumbing for tenants in the houses he has taken over on HOLC mortgage foreclosures!

Communists have accumulated rapidly in this country during the past five or six years. Though not as thick as autumn leaves, a strong prosperity wind would blow most of them away.

A man in Quebec pulled down a six-room house in nine days. That's nothing. A man in Washington pulled down 48 states in less than six years.

The United States Government recently doled 200,000 acres of land to an Indian tribe, without asking for the return of the beads.

Role of Reflexes In Auto Accidents Is Discussed

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE MACHINE threatens to dominate all aspects of human life. Strong is the man today whose spiritual life is free from the machine's tyrannies. Lewis Mumford's remarkable books "Technics and Civilization" and "The Culture of Cities" indicate how much the machine has crowded out humanism, but he holds out a hope that we can break through to peace and control.

Little things count in this and I am impressed with the article by Dr. Howard B. Fabing, of Cincinnati, who analyzes the mental condition of us poor oafs at the wheel of a car in the awful presence of traffic lights (Journal of the American Medical Association, September 1939). Adoption of his suggestions may prevent a proportion of our annual automobile accident toll, and certainly it will make drivers more comfortable.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Conditioned Reflex
The motor car driver when confronted by a traffic light, responds to a conditional reflex. If he sees the red light, he has an inhibitory instinct which causes him to step down on the brake and release the clutch. If the light is green he has an excitatory (go ahead) reflex which makes him release the brakes and the clutch and step on the accelerator.

But they do not always control him absolutely because he may come into a traffic corner and see the traffic light suddenly. If it is red, he does not know how long it has been on and hopes it may go off soon so that he may proceed. Or vice versa, so his reflexes may get mixed up. The intervening yellow light does not always help out because on many signals it does not flash between red and green.

Pavlov, the Russian physiologist, who first described this quick succession of antagonistic conditioned reflexes and confusion in visual conditioning stimuli in the dog and very significantly referred to times when "collision" phenomena occurred.

If a reflex which brings expectation of food is established in a dog, and then another which means no food and then both these stimuli are applied in rapid succession, the animal becomes very nervous and excitable and irritable.

"Anxiety Neurosis"
The same thing happens to a motorist at times. He may get "collision" phenomena, and, as Dr. Fabing says, "an anxiety neurosis in miniature" occurs. When several experiences of this kind follow one on another in succession, it produces "a conscious restless anxiety exhaustion." Every driver must have experienced this.

To overcome some of this, there are better traffic lights than the commonly used available. Dr. Fabing recommends Schuber's, which is a circular glass panel divided into four sections—red, green and two yellows, on which a hand, similar to a clock's hand, indicates how much of red or green light is left, and this is calculated to compose the motorist's reactions.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 W. 45th st., New York City. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks Reducing Diet", "Indigestion and Constipation", "Reducing and Gaining", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Femine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin".

Methodist Church Plans Fellowship Week Program

Special Emphasis To Be Given To All Services Arranged by Rev. Carl Asmus, Pastor

Methodist churches throughout the world are observing the week of Nov. 3 through Nov. 20 as Fellowship Week and special emphasis is being given to all services during the week.

Several special events have been arranged by Rev. Carl Asmus at the local Methodist church, including a sermon on "The Foundations of Fellowship" at the morning service at 10:30 Sunday and an evening service at 7:30. Other special events include a service of prayer and fellowship on Tuesday evenings and a men's banquet on Thursday evening. The week will conclude on Sunday, Nov. 20 with the Methodist church participating in the city-wide "Go to Church" Sunday, and a service for young people in the evening.

Following Jesus' Sermon Topic At Lutheran Church

Following Jesus" is the subject of the sermon which Rev. George Kleinkurt will preach at the morning worship service of the Trinity English Lutheran church tomorrow, the 22nd Sunday after Trinity.

Complete services for the church are as follows:

Sunday school, 9:45 (Matthew 22:42). Charles W. Youtz, supt.

Human life is God's best and best gift to the world. The physical side of life comes from the earth. It is earth-centered. How human life is more than earthly. Holy Scriptures tell us that God made man from the dust of the earth and breathed into man the breath of life and man became a living soul. This soul or spirit in man makes him different than all other life. Human life is sacred. Man is banned both by the laws of God and man. Jesus our Saviour has far beyond the laws of man and makes human life far more precious. That standard is worth living for.

Morning worship, 11. Sermon: Following Jesus.

It may seem easy and simple to follow. That is true of some leaders, whom we may choose to follow. This does not apply to the Head of the Church, Jesus our Lord. There are strict regulations for those who would follow Jesus. We must be willing to make sacrifices for Him. He must be placed in our interests. We must not be half-hearted about our faith. Some supposed-followers must be shocked and surprised to hear that long ago, they were called to meet the strict requirements of the Savior of all the world.

Christian Science Society Services

"Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read at the morning worship service of the Christian Science Society tomorrow.

Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 20 years will be held at 10:30 a. m. while on Wednesday the mid-week service will be held at the church at 8 p. m.

The Golden Text is: "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." (2 Corinthians 5:17).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following passage from the Bible: "And Jesus departed from thence, and came nigh unto the sea of Galilee; and went up into a mountain, and sat down there. And great multitudes came unto him, having their lame, dumb, and many there, and cast them down at Jesus feet, and he healed them." (Matthew 15:29, 30).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God causes men to be sick, and men must be good, and their health must be good, and it is good that makes it good and will cure forever. If the transgression of God's law produces sickness, it is right to be sick; and we cannot be sick and should not if we would, and the decrees of wisdom." (p. 229).

This society maintains a reading room at 136 South Broadway where the Bible and all authorized Christian Science literature may be read or borrowed. The room is open daily from 1 to 4 p. m. and from 7 to 9 p. m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday.

Sunday Sermons

The Sunday morning sermon "God's Search For Beauty" will point to the reality of true and abiding beauty which often escapes the casual observer of life. Scripture and human experiences will both be used to illustrate God's sense of beauty and how He is anxious to fully reveal it to us.

The confusion of human desires in man's struggle for purpose, idealism, and power has been the basis of much sorrow and disappointment in human life. The Sunday evening sermon "Jesus In Human Desires" will reveal what the Bible says about this element of life and show how Jesus stands ready to help us attain real victory in the confusion of human desires.

Go To Church

The various churches and civic organizations of Salem have designated Sunday, Nov. 20, as city-wide "Go To Church" Sunday.

The purpose of this day is to encourage every person to attend the church of his choice as a public expression of gratitude to God. We all have many things for which we should be thankful and when we stop to count our many blessings we will truly be surprised to recognize the many blessings which have come to us from God.

Each Salem church is asked to pause sometime during the service Sunday morning to have a special prayer for this city-wide "Go To Church" Sunday. This is truly a city-wide movement and a very fine spirit of cooperation has been shown by all groups of our city which have been asked to help promote this occasion for gratitude to God.

"The ELEVEN OF DIAMONDS"

by BAYNARD H. KENDRICK

CHAPTER XXXII

"You don't believe I tried to make Tolly lose his money?" Mrs. Staunton was hopeful as a child.

"I believe the truth—that you tried to save him."

"Oh, I did. I did. He'd been drinking that night, Mr. Rice. Eva was with him until he started to gamble so he vily she came to the hotel to get me and drove me back to Commander Dawson's apartment, but she didn't want to go up again. She took a taxi back to the hotel."

"Who else was there?"

"The Bessingers. That was the night Tolly lost the nine hundred dollars to him and gave him an I. O. U. They left right after I came. The Commander and Edward Fowler didn't want to play with Tolly—but he insisted. I think they did so to avoid a scene."

"Did you play?"

"Against Tolly? Never. I've played bridge against him but that's all. The only reason I agree to that is to avoid embarrassment when we're on the boat."

"But you know how to shoot craps."

"I was a showgirl on Broadway for many years, Mr. Rice. That's quite a good education in many things they don't teach you in the public schools. I don't need to touch a pair of dice to tell if they're phony—fourteen passes don't come out in a row unless something is pulling the right figures down to the floor."

"You took them out of the game?"

"Just that," she declared firmly. "There were similar dice in a box near where they were shooting on the floor. I picked up the pair Fowler was using and said: 'I'll jinx them for you, Tolly'—but the dice I threw back into the game were from the box on the floor. The phones went into my bag where Tolly found them in the car on the way home."

The Swampfire was beginning to roll. Stan stood up and went to the window of the lounge, watching the slow swing of tassels on the cords which held back the draperies. "We're getting close to the inlet," he remarked idly. "Suppose we go into the pilot room. I'd like to watch us go through the rough water."

He opened a small door at the forward end of the lounge and stepped through. Lydia Staunton rose and followed him, closing the door behind her. "Keep clear of the wheel," Stan warned her. "It turns as Dawson uses the other one aft."

"I know," she came close beside him at the port window, brushing against him as the boat heeled. He groped for the binnacle light and turned it on. Far ahead they could see the flash of the lighthouse warning them off of Fowey Rocks.

"Who owned those dice in the box?" Stan asked after a time.

"I don't know. I thought they were Fowler's."

"But they could have belonged to the Bessingers."

"They could have. They were using them when I came."

"You've explained this to Mr. Farraday?"

"What's the use?" She asked rather hopelessly. "If he believes what Tolly said—no explanation on my part will change it. If he doesn't—it would look like I'm terribly anxious to put myself in the clear at the expense of his son."

"Eve likes you, doesn't she?"

"She's a dear. But she's devoted to Tolly. His scrapes keep her constantly upset. Mr. Farraday has a lot of faith in you, Mr. Rice. The truth coming from you—"

"I'll tell him. Forget it for a day or two. I'm sure everything will come out all right!"

"I feel better about it. I must have a lot of faith in you, too."

"I hope it's justified," Stan told her. "I need it right now."

The intimacy of the tiny pilot room, closing out the rest of the world, drew them close together. She told him of her struggle to make a name in the theatre; the ending of her career with marriage to Staunton; and the dawning of her great love for Bruce Farraday.

At first she found him sympathetic and understanding, but as the flashing light on the Fowey Rocks grew larger, she sensed he was not listening.

"I've talked too much," she said, a trifle sadly. "I'm sorry."

"No!" The Swampfire rolled deeply and dipped her slim pro. Lydia saw the shielded whiteness of the bow-light touch a wall of green water—felt the boat shiver as a wave broke with the hardness of pebbles on the mahogany deck, foaming off through the scuppers.

She grasped Stan's arm for support, and pointed to the lighthouse. It was no longer ahead, but was visible only through the starboard window. "We're off our course!" There was a catch of fear in her statement.

The door to the pilot room swung open, outlining the forms of Dawson and LeRoy against the lights of the lounge. The Captain's blue automatic was in his hand.

"Are you fooling with this wheel?" The Commander demanded curtly. "We're wallowing in the trough! Farraday's handling this boat from the stern."

The wheel spun dangerously as another wave keeled the boat until the port windows were looking at water. Stan was intent on the compass. "Help me grab that wheel, Dawson! Quick—as she starts up! Nobody's handling this boat. We're about to pile up on the Cape Florida shoals!"

Together, he and Dawson took the wheel, bracing themselves against the wrench as a rolling sea slapped at the rudder. The Swampfire climbed up and up, then slowly answered the helm as they spun the wheel to starboard. "O. K.," said Dawson. "I can handle her now."

"Come on, Vince!" Stan stooped, and was gone through the door into the lounge. Clinging to the guard rail along the cabin, they made their way to the stern and jumped down into the cockpit.

Bruce Farraday had slipped from the seat by the controls. He was lying half on and half off of the platform, swaying slowly head down with each roll of the boat. As they lifted him gently to the floor of the cockpit, Eve came up the hatchway from the cabin. Brown eyes wide with terror, she knelt by her father and touched his face.

"Daddy, Daddy," her voice was numb.

Stan lifted her to her feet. "We'll have to get your father below to one of the staterooms, Eve," he told her gently. "We must hurry. He's still alive. Heat some water quickly."

"Is he sick?" She was still uncomprehending.

"No, it's rather worse than that," LeRoy put an arm around her shoulders as he might have comforted his own child. "He's been shot with a mushroom bullet."

Bruce Farraday stirred uneasily and groaned. His face was colorless as the pillow slip on the stateroom berth. Headed back to Miami at full speed, with the push of the ocean in her wake, the Swampfire was riding more steadily. Stan touched the bandages on Farraday's shoulder, then crossed the stateroom and opened the door to admit Lydia Staunton.

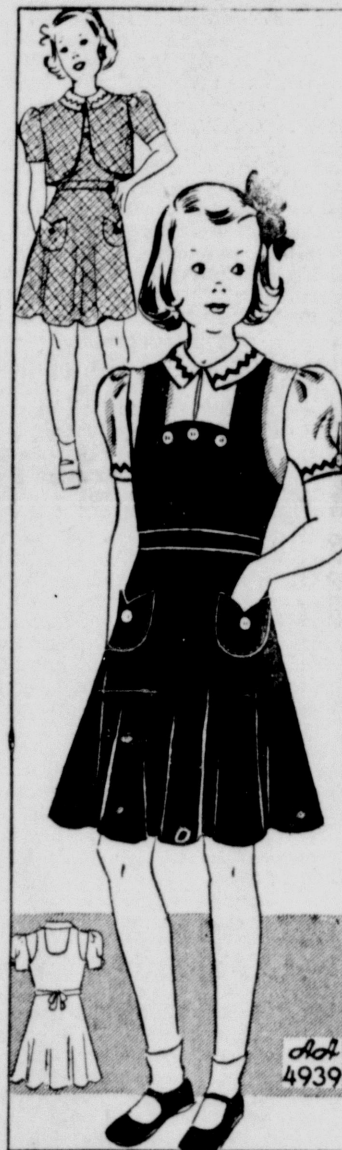

"The Captain and I have done all we can do. Luckily the boat's medicine chest is well supplied. There's nothing now until we get him to the hospital."

"She's got him a suppling glance. "And then?"

"I think he'll be all right. His shoulder is smashed up. I don't think his lungs have been touched."

"I can stay here with him?"

"I talked the matter over with State's Attorney Mumford before we left. He agrees with that I have an airtight case. Shooting forces my hand. My will be in jail before the newspaper are on the street. I think you who it is as well as I do."

"What have you learned, Vince?"

"I've traced the knives for a thing. They were stolen from winter quarters of the circus Sarasota."

"Are you going to tell a jury that proves who threw them?"

"That's Mumford's business. Here's something that will keep from being so bored. Last Saturday a man left the others in a moment downstairs—saying to write a postal. He used a machine in the office—then he cussed himself and went upstairs the bathroom. Have you questioned your blonde about that?"

"No," Stan admitted. "I have Go on. It sounds interesting."

"My witnesses are Toby Mumford and his servant, Juan. I also Ben Eckhardt's sworn statement asked Mille about it—but he claims she had stepped out on porch to wait for Ben and Ben the man was Dave Button."

TOUGH TUSSLES FACE GRID LEADERS TODAY

Ashland College Eleven Finishes Season, Losing Seventh Straight Game

Courageous Eagles, Who Hardly Had Enough Players to Form Team At Start of Season, Lose To Findlay In Final

A cheer for the courageous Eagles of Ashland college who triumphed in defeat!

Adversity moved into Ashland's gridiron camp ere the season opened, and resided there in one form or another down the route of the Eagles' schedule.

Ashland, to start with, had barely sufficient men to make up a team. Authorities considered cancellation of all games, but decided to permit Coach Frank Lonero to carry on. A few additional players reported for duty, but injuries took the usual toll. There always was the possibility that the dean might have to complete Lonero's line.

Yesterday Ashland bowed to Findlay, 24 to 12, to wind up its grid campaign. The defeat was the seventh straight for the Eagles, who engaged in seven tilts. Yet their indomitable spirit in every encounter commanded the respect of every opponent. That's playin' the game!

Ohio Northern's Polar Bears scored their sixth victory of the season yesterday when they nosed out Mt. Union, 9 to 6, at Kenton. With the count 6-all and a minute to go in the final period, sophomore Harry Tisari, a tackle, booted a field goal squarely between the uprights from the 16-yard line, clinching the battle for the Bears.

Muskingum trounced Marietta's Pioneers, 7 to 6, in a nip-and-tuck Ohio conference game. The Pioneers scored in the opening period. The Muskies rumbled to the touchdown stripe in a second period drive Evans kicked the decisive point after Aiken plunged from the six for the marker.

Today's games: Ohio State at Illinois, John Carroll-Western Reserve at Cleveland, a fight for state honors; Ohio U. at Dayton, Heidelberg at Wooster, Wittenberg at Kenyon, Baldwin Wallace at Kent State, Baldwin at Capital, Oberlin at Denison, Marshall at Cincinnati, Miami at Case, Centre at Ohio Wesleyan, Toledo at Akron, Bowling Green at Hiram, Clarion State Teachers at Youngstown and Transylvania at Rio Grande.

ROCKNE STYLE NOT FOLLOWED BY STAR PUPIL

Tom Conley Says Trends Since 1930 Call For Changes

CLEVELAND, Nov. 12.—Tom Conley, handsome, black-haired Irishman who captained Knute Rockne's last Notre Dame team, carries on the Rockne tradition of superior football at John Carroll University which meets Western Reserve in an all-important Big Four game today.

Conley was right end and captain of Rockne's 1930 team—which, football historians recall, won 10 straight victories and another national grid title.

The Carroll Blue Streaks, coached by Conley, opened the season with a series of victories.

Conley won grid immortality as a player in 1929, when he caught a pass hurled by halfback Jack Elder. When the statisticians finished adding, they found that Tom had gained 62 yards, and had delivered a 13 to 12 victory for the Ramblers over Southern California before an all-time record crowd of 112,900 fans.

Since 1934, and prior to this year, the Streaks have been calmed on a sea of dispute. A bitter alumni fight led to the ousting of Ralph Vince after the close of the 1934 season, and Tom Yarr was named his successor. Things went from bad to worse, and then Conley was lured from Notre Dame, where he had served as an assistant under "Hunk" Anderson and Elmer Layden.

Conley's first two seasons at Carroll were devoted mostly to foundation work, and the Blue Streaks won only five games, while losing 12. This season Conley has cashed in on his two-year investment.

In Eddie Arsenault, his star halfback, Conley has an able pigskin carrier. Arsenault dashed 49 yards for John Carroll's first touchdown in the Carroll-Case game.

The rest of the team, for the most part, have been schooled in the Conley technique of yardage addition for several years. As Carroll's coach, Conley does not use the Notre Dame system under which he first gained fame. Instead, the Blue Streak pilot favors the short punt formation and a single wing-back formation.

"Changing trends in football demand alterations in the style of play," he said, crouching at the sidelines. "Don't think 'Rock' did not realize this and he'd have been the first to scrap parts of his system. I've made the changes I think he would have made had he lived."

In 1936, when Conley's job was considered one of the least enviable tasks in the state, he said, "The prospects for the 1936 campaign are none too good. But there is one prediction I'd like to make! Inside of three years, there'll be an entirely different aspect to Carroll's status in the Big Four." (Comprised of Cleveland's Western Reserve University, Case, Baldwin-Wallace and John Carroll.)

Conley said it in 1936, and the experts are saying it now.

Farmers Organize Protective Group
Farmers in the east Goshen township area, north of Salem, have organized a game protective club to prevent hunting and trespassing on land in their territory.

The areas protected by the club will be posted, warning hunters that trespassers will be prosecuted.

Most of Leading Elevens Scheduled for Games of Major Importance Today

Another Splurge of Upsets Likely If Friday Scores Are An Indication of What's Coming; Holy Cross Is Winner

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—If the scattered Armistice day games indicate the trend for this week-end, another splurge of upsets and narrow escapes is in store for the nation's leading football teams today.

With the season drawing towards its close, most of leading elevens are scheduled for games of major importance, either against rivals of long standing, conference enemies who may make or break a championship season, or major intersectional foes.

Setting the stage for another day of upsets, Boston college and Holy Cross, two eastern leaders, barely pulled out decisions over opponents they figures to beat easily yesterday and in-and-out Colgate lost, 13-7, to New York university.

Boston college staged off a last period air attack to down its smaller neighbor, Boston university, 21-14, while Holy Cross rallied in the final quarter to beat Brown, 14-12.

That's just a hint of what may happen on today's big program.

The east has a dozen chances for upsets with a list of traditional scraps topped by Princeton-Yale, the longest continuous football series. Other Ivy-twined games include Cornell Dartmouth, the "title" scrap in the mythical Ivy league, and Carnegie-Duquesne, Columbia-Navy, Pennsylvania-Penn State, Rutgers-Lafayette, Temple-Villanova and West Virginia-Georgetown.

On the intersectional side are Fordham-North Carolina, Syracuse-Duke (the latter the nation's only major undefeated, untied, unscored-on team), George Washington-Kansas, Harvard-Virginia, Army-Chatanooga and Western Maryland-Wake Forest.

There's a breathing spell in the Western conference race, but not for the teams concerned as Minnesota takes on unbeaten Notre Dame and Wisconsin goes west to play U. C. L. A. Michigan and Northwestern fight it out for runner-up honors while Ohio State plays Illinois, Indiana meets Iowa and Chicago plays the College of the Pacific.

Oklahoma, in a tough race for the Big Six title, meets Missouri, hardly a contender but a very difficult customer, while Iowa State, co-leader, plays Kansas State. Nebraska takes on its favorite intersectional enemy, Pittsburgh.

Texas Christian, Southwest conference leader, plays last-place Texas, while Rice and South

Methodist, tied for second, meet Texas A. and M. and Arkansas respectively. Baylor went to the Pacific coast and walloped Loyola of Los Angeles, 25-2, yesterday.

The Southeastern conference tussles, sending pace-setting Tennessee against Vanderbilt, Georgia against Tulane and Alabama against Georgia Tech, head of the Southern state. Other interesting games are Auburn-Louisiana State, Kentucky-Clemson, Mississippi-Sewanee, Florida-Maryland, North Carolina State-Detroit, Mississippi State-Centenary, V. M. I.-Davidson, Furman-South Carolina and Washington and Louisiana-William and Mary. Virginia Tech and Richmond played a scoreless Southern conference game yesterday.

On the west coast, Southern California meets Oregon and Oregon State plays Stanford.

Utah, heading the Rocky mountain Big Seven, meets Colorado State. Other pairings are Colorado-Brigham Young, Utah State-Wyoming and Denver-Hawaii.

OHIOAN AT 80 STARTING LIFE

David T. Evans, Justus, Believes That Life Has Just Begun

JUSTUS, O. — David T. Evans, 80-year-old school custodian who keeps house, cooks for himself and his two disabled sons, and sings in the choir, believes that life begins at 80.

"I feel a slight livelier than I did back in 1913, when I quit coal-mining because I couldn't digest the dust," he said, chuckling, as he dried the dinner dishes. "I guess the reason I feel so good is because I live right."

Evans, lean and leathery, has been working hard for 70 years—having started at 10 in the coal mines of South Wales.

Besides doing all the maintenance work in Justus grade school, he finds time to tend his own vegetable garden, keep house, and sing in the Justus-Pigeon Run Glee club.

"In the wintertime I'm busy from 6 in the morning to 10 at night," he said. "And I don't waste any of my time drinking or smoking. There's no sense in burning your money and then blowing the smoke through your nose."

Evans has been singing with musical organizations since he came here from Wales 52 years ago, and is the oldest member of the choir.

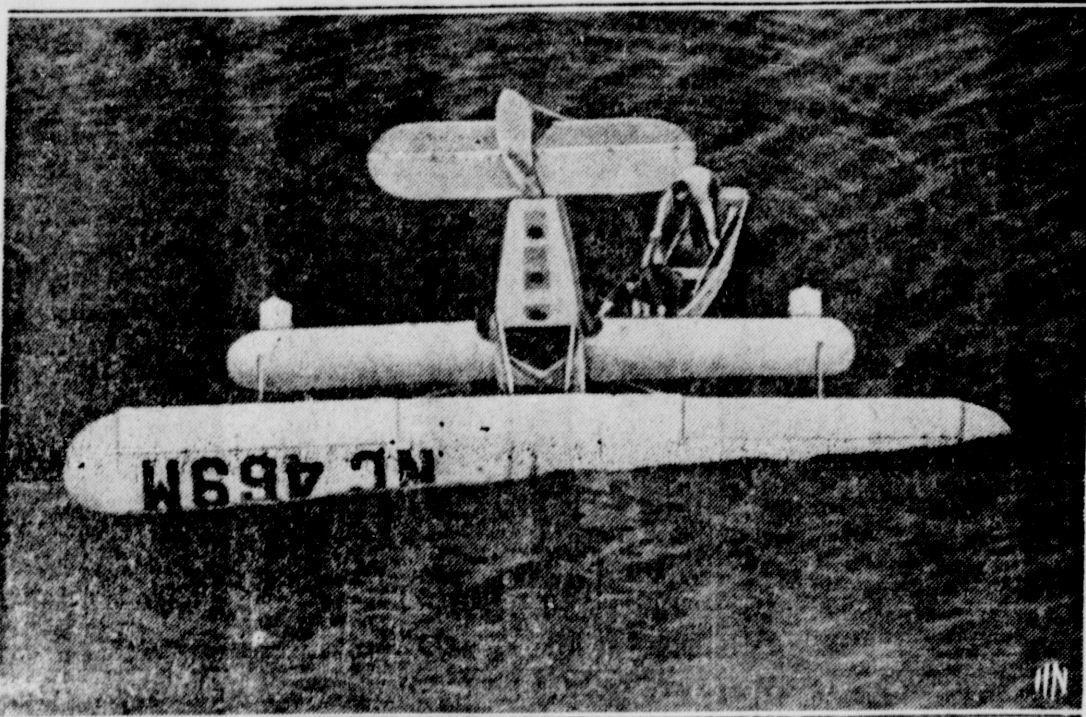

He attends all the local baseball games and some of the football games.

"When Brewster played Navarre, I just about cheered myself hoarse," the old man said. "Did you see that game? My great grandson, Billy Nieldenthal, threw that 62-yard pass that won the game."

Evans has six sons, two daughters, 19 grandchildren, and 27 great grandchildren.

"Suez", with a cast headed by Tyrone Power, Loretta Young and Annabella, comes to the State Sunday to show through Tuesday.

The picture as the title indicates, is a story of the building of one of the world's greatest engineering feats, the Suez canal, by a French dreamer, Ferdinand de Lesseps. Power has the role of the engineer who made his dream into a reality; Miss Young is seen as the young French noblewoman, beloved of de Lesseps, who becomes the Empress Eugenie of France; Annabella is seen in the role of a French soldier's daughter, who loves the young engineer.

A cast of hundreds of well known players, besides many extras, worked in the picture which required one of the most lavish, extensive and expensive series of sets motion pictures have seen.
